Question about giving Guidance

By Estelle Roberts 2012

Don't think that just because we have moved forward that we don't make mistakes. That's another misconception that the people of the Earth Plane have. They think that just because we are from the astral sphere that we never make mistakes. We make plenty of mistakes! We try and minimise them. We try when we are giving guidance to be as truthful and as honest as we can but we can be misunderstood in our thinking as well. After all none of us have elevated our being to the 7th plane and therefore if we haven't elevated our being there obviously we have a great deal of negativity in our personage.

Is it possible that sometimes you give guidance to your best ability, and you feel it's right but actually it's wrong?

No we consider the guidance is right but we don't necessarily take into consideration the impurities which the person that we are giving the guidance to has and therefore they can misconstrue, misunderstand the direction that needs to occur. How often have we been in a group and you sit and you hear the talk after the meeting and you wonder have they all been listening to the same talk. We've all done that haven't we?

Oh yes.

Yes and we think how on earth could they have misunderstood that way and then we feel bad. Then we feel really guilty because we haven't explained it properly because if people have taken it in different interpretations it's the teacher who is wrong, not the pupil because the teacher didn't convey the message correctly and that's a problem that we have because we're dealing with different individuals. We might look at two or three and say well alright this is the way we explain it, but miss out on another two or three who perceive things in a different way and therefore they will put a different slant on to the teachings. So it's a difficult job we have isn't it? I wonder why we do it sometimes I really do.

It would be nice to just sit there and do nothing would it not?

No we wouldn't do that. We're not allowed to do that. I say that but we do do that initially you know. When you first come to the astral sphere from where you are, first of all you have your eyes wide open because it all seems so new, which is silly really because it's not new at all but to your perception it's all new and once you get over the awe you then just want to soak it up and after you've soaked it up for a while then you realise there has to be more and then you want to go and learn and teach.

Can you confirm to me that when somebody passes over everyone goes into the healing halls?

Initially no, if that is the question. When you pass over first of all you have to do have an acceptance of the transference from the physical to the astral. It doesn't happen automatically you know. Not everybody accepts the fact that they have passed and therefore they have to move forward, so initially you have that acceptance stage. Then you have a stage when you have to be acclimatised to your return to the astral sphere. You have to learn how to think, how to talk, how to move, all these have to be reintroduced into your thinking. It's the same thing as when you're born on the Earth Plane. You don't immediately know how to walk do you? You have to learn and it's no different each time you come to the Earth Plane. You would think well I've been here before so should be able to walk and talk exactly because I've done it before. It's no different. So therefore your guide, your mentor then reintroduces you into the fundamentals of the astral sphere. Then once you have become acclimatised to that and then you do the "I want to know everything. I want to be here. I want to be there" and the mind just gets blown out of enthusiasm because you can see so much has opened out. Then once that has taken place then you go to the Halls of Learning.
