Communication and Computers

By Estelle Roberts 2013

A member of our group commented about how much time is wasted on sitting in front of computers and that was why she did not own one.

Are you saying that increasing your knowledge is wasting time?

No it's just that to actually utilise this piece of modern machinery it really consumes a lot of your time. If you are not prepared to actually give it the time then you can't learn from it. It does take up a lot of time. There's always something else to be done.

Doesn't everything?

Yes it does so at the moment, I don't have that sort of spare time.

Well nor does but she spends a lot of time on it don't you?

Too much.

And your job would be very difficult to do if you didn't have it wouldn't it?

Yes Indeed.

Because really it's only an extension of your brain because your brain is, in simplified terms, a computer or a part of your brain is a simplified part of your computer. Far more complex but all the files are up there. All you've got to do is find the key to unlock it and that's what we do in life isn't it? We unlock certain parts of our brain. Do you know how much of your being, your brain, you actually utilise?

Probably 1%.

Quite so. There is 99% which isn't being utilised. So therefore if you can expand your thinking it can only be a positive. You don't want to be like the children of today who spend all their time playing with it because they're not using it as a learning tool. They are using it purely for their amusement and that's not wrong, but it is wrong when it occupies the vast time, the vastness of their leisure time, and so many of them do don't they?

They just have to have it you see. In spite of their gadgets they still can't communicate on a one to one basis. They have trouble communicating, even with all...

Well you wait until you come here. Then you will see the reality of communication. I'm talking to you now and there are a lot of people who are here listening from the astral plane and to those who are here, each and every one of them hears me within their being as if I'm standing right in front of them and there could be 100,000 people out there. I'm not saying there are, I'm just using that as an example, and to each and every one of them it is as if I am standing in front of them communicating and please note my terminology there. Communicating, not talking, I am communicating. Because although I communicate to you using the verbal means they, if they have advanced enough, they receive it in the manner that we communicate in the Astral Plane and beyond and therefore they get far more depth from what I am saying.

Because words cannot express all of what you are saying.

No, because I cannot put the full picture out there for you to understand but if they have advanced to the level where they can absorb that they can understand 100% where I'm coming from. It would be nice if we could do that on a day-to-day basis wouldn't it?

It would be terrific. We wouldn't need the computer.

But you would be very disillusioned on what some people think.

I think we can get used to it. We are getting used to every other thing.
