Our place in the Universe

By Maurice Barbanell 2012

The fact that we are human is something which is so easily forgotten. We have our failings. Just because we have left the Earth Plane does not mean that we understand and see all. There is only one individual, one being who sees and understands all and that of course is the Great Spirit. We are given a little bit of his love, his knowledge. We are given this and we utilise what faculties we have to transmit this knowledge to the people we come to talk to. Sometimes the messengers who come forward, the messengers who have a modicum of knowledge, get this knowledge mixed up with their own desire for grandeur. Their own desire to be something different. This is why there is a breakout at this point in time of what is affectionately called the new teachings. The new teachings, what does it mean?

People look up to the stars. It has been coming more and more a reality that there is life beyond the Earth Plane, that there are galaxies upon galaxies upon galaxies beyond your own and therefore we who occupy our place in the development of the galaxies have an understanding, once we have moved forward, of our place within the universe and the universal. The teachings to be pure should not concentrate on the universal. There is time enough when you are here and you have moved forward to totally understand and comprehend the universal. Why when you are in kindergarten do you wish to know the theory of relativity apart from the fact that it is there. When you are in kindergarten you get taught that which you can accept and understand with your brain's development at that time. The development of the mind has expanded and there are groups within the spiritual sphere who have caught on to this shift in peoples thinking. Have caught on to it and saw an opening for their own slant on the teachings. What does it matter if there is life on other planets? For your development at this point in time what does it really matter? It is absolutely illogical when you consider the vastness of your galaxy and the galaxies beyond that there is not life on other planets and other spheres. You don't really think that the entire universe was created for the use of this little blue planet which you occupy. This little blue planet is a schoolyard. In reality it is not part of reality. It is like a cocoon. There is a power which the Earth Plane and your close planets are contained within. A cocoon effect which allows the development of the people of the Earth Plane but there is life and intelligence elsewhere. There is life and intelligence far beyond your galaxies.

Where do you think we exist? We exist out there but not in the form or the composition that you can fully understand and comprehend. Have you ever really thought, except in an academic way, what happens when you leave your physical body? Yes your astral body leaves it. Where does it go? You cannot see it, you cannot feel it and yet it continues to live in another vibration which is totally outside your perspective and conception. When you leave the Earth Plane and you join what has affectionately been called the Summerland, which is at a totally different vibration, this new vibration will then become your new reality. The reality of thought. The reality which surrounds you at that time is as real as it was when you were contained within the physical. But where is it? Is it on some planet elsewhere? Do we have all these different planets which we utilise and we jump from one to the other? No my friends, that is a ludicrous and unconstructive way of thinking. It exists in another vibration, another form of life. Something which you cannot see whilst you are contained within the physical, but that does not take away from its reality to all those who are contained within.

Once you are contained within the Summerland, the reality of the Summerland is very real, very solid, but that too is merely an apparition because the astral body which you utilise whilst you are upon the levels of the Summerland is not really you. Once you leave the Summerland you leave your astral body behind, so you go on to a new reality. Where is this new reality? It is once again in another vibration which once you are within the realms of the Summerland you have no perception and concept of where and how it can exist. But that too, and I'm only speaking now from what I have been told, that too is an unreal unrealistic reality because once you have left the realms of the 5th and the 6th plane you leave your supernatural being behind and you move forward, you move on to a new reality, to a new vista. This vista is something I have only been told about, but I understand that it is truly beautiful.

Once we have reached this point have we reached heaven? Have we reached our final resting place? No my friends, all we have done is we have returned from whence we started. We have returned to the beginning not to the end. From there we go forward, we go out and spread the message. That is what we were doing before we fell astray, before we came down to the level that we are now, so what you consider as the pinnacle is really only the starting place. All you've done is you've dragged yourself back to where you were before. You've elevated yourself back to where you were before. Then my friends, then your work, your true work has to start. What that is I have no conception.

I have enough problems conceptualising getting back to where we started from. To me it is still this unobtainable pinnacle and I cannot understand how I could have ever been in that place and got to the position that I did, because if I was there I wouldn't want to leave it. How could I even think that there would be a better way, but that is history, it is a fact. We misused our trust. We misused the love which was given to us to give out, so therefore we have to return. So don't ever consider that what we ask for is unobtainable because what we ask for is just returning back to the starting point. You haven't even started the race yet. You're still dragging yourself back to the starting line. So always look forward. There is no point in your looking back, unless you can learn from the lessons, unless the lessons which have been instilled upon your being are good ones, there's no point in looking back. Don't look back in negativity. If you look back in negativity you create doubt, you create a feeling of inadequacy, a feeling of fear, a feeling of misunderstanding and misjudgement. You are what you are. You have achieved what you have achieved. Do not ever compare yourself with another. It's not your responsibility. You cannot be responsible for the progression or otherwise of another individual. You can help where you can help, but you are responsible for yourself and no body else.

So take that responsibility very seriously because I want us all to meet at our starting point. I want us all to be there, to be at one with the Heavenly Host and the Beings who are enveloped with so much love that it hurts, it hurts when they look down, and I use that in a metaphorical sense, when they look across and see the beings who could be so pure filled with darkness, filled with shadow, filled with negative vibration. They look upon them and they hurt within themselves because of the love which they have. The love which they have is the love that each and every one of you has, so don't forget that my friends. You have the divine power within you. Keep it and guard it.
