Talk to People/Beings with Different Levels of Understanding

By Maurice Barbanell 2012

When we come to our group, or other groups, and we prepare the subject matter which we wish to discuss, you may think that our discussions are very ad hoc and you just come here, stand in front of the audience and it just flows as if we are having a conversation, but in reality a great deal of thought is given to the direction of the messages that we wish to transfer and how we can do it because there's no point in giving you teachings and knowledge until you are in the right perceptive mind to accept them. It's not saying that you couldn't understand the higher knowledge but you wouldn't be in the frame of mind to accept them because accepting and knowing are two different things. Because if you know something is a fact, it is just something which is separate from your being. You know the world is round. That's a fact but you don't have to think about it any further than that. You know that clouds emit rain. You don't have to worry how that happens you just know that it does, but if you were at the state where your responsibility was the wellbeing of the Earth Plane then you would have to know, you'd have to know because it would be your responsibility to control or facilitate the control of such activities.

So therefore one is an academic knowledge. The other is innate knowledge which you have to instil into your being because you have to do something with it. And that's the same thing with our teachings. We can tell you that your ultimate goal is to become a being of infinite love and that in essence is an interesting concept, but it isn't a reality to your being at this point in time. How you improve your being to get to the next stage of development, that's important. That is something which is to be instilled in your being. That is something which you have to live your life with and it's very difficult when we have the congregation as we do this day and the group who are out there are at different levels of purity and advancement. We have been brought into an arena in which different levels are able to attend if they so desire. We do not send out a message. We do not sell tickets. A vibration goes out and an awareness goes out, but then those who have the responsibility have to place the individuals, like putting them in stands.

You're going to a concert next week. You'll all be in your own individual stands, will you not? So if you can image the groups and you have the different levels of achievement around and they within their own group consider that they are the only group that are there. Bit like some religions on the Earth Plane . They think they're unique. But we have the facility to see and encompass all. So it depends upon your level of attunement, your level of love, the level of acceptance of your fellow beings' point of view, which is important. Don't ever make excuses for your own shortcomings. We're all guilty of that.

I do not stand before you as the epitome of correctness. I have the knowledge. I wish to God, or to be more correct in my guiding friend's way of thinking, I wish to the Great Spirit, that I could have attained the perfection that I had been desirous of achieving, but I do know what it is. I have seen the beings who have attained it and therefore I am aware of what the goal is. I look at the goal and I look at myself and I find myself wanting. This is not wrong. It's not wrong to find yourself wanting. What is wrong is if you find yourself wanting and then you accept it as being your normality, accept it as being the way you are and that you have no desire to improve it. That is wrong. That is almost an ultimate sin because you have accepted the negativity which is within you. How do you think we devalued our being? By accepting the lower vibration and accepting it as the norm and slowly we accepted more and more and more until our being had devalued itself to such a degree it was almost unrecognizable from what we were.

Having been there we have the knowledge of what we did and how we devalued our being. With that knowledge it should give us the impetus to move forward, the impetus to not fall down like we did before. It would be a damned sight easier if everybody followed that rule because if everybody followed that rule there would be no negative vibration for us to fall down with.

It's very easy when you're surrounded with love and happiness and people who only think the best of you and the best of themselves. It's only when you get those people on lower vibrations, the beings of lower vibrations who then wake you up and you think yes, but as you evolve you do not wish to retaliate. What you desire then is you pray. You pray to the Great Spirit, the Great Master and you ask that you be given the strength to help to lift them out of the doldrums where they have reduced themselves to. Lift them up so they can see the beauty of what lays before them.

It is an incredible perspective, an incredible vista. I can never explain in reality what there is when you move forward, when you go past the 4th, 5th, 6th plane, because it is not within your realms of understanding. The people of the Earth Plane have a difficulty in conceptualising the Summerland. We made it easier by comparing it with the Earth Plane. In reality the Earth Plane is a mirror of certain parts of the Summerland and therefore the transition between the one and the other is fairly easy to accept, but when you move further, further forward, there's no need for the mental physicality which you create in the Summerland because it's something, once again it's very difficult to explain whilst you're in the material world, that when you are in the Summerland and you have advanced to a certain state that anything that you can conceptualise in your mind can become a reality in your being.

I'll give you an example. You're in a hall listening to a lecture and you're bored out of your brains. You go into a dream world and you visualize sitting on the banks of a deep green meadow with a stream flowing, trickling at your feet and then something incredible happens. You're there. You're taken out of that hall. You're placed in that meadow with the cool stream passing past your feet. Now once you have achieved the level of development within the Summerland, you accept this, this phenomena as being normal but to accept it as being normal when you are contained within the physical seems almost impossible. It is only because you are contained within the limitations of your physical being.

You take our friend Harry, Harold Edwards. He spends some of his time in France. He spends his time in the Summerland. He spends his time in the planes beyond, but within a blink of an eye he can be in any one of those situations. He can be here with us now. Friends the other side of the world wish to communicate. He's there. Friends from higher spheres wish to communicate. Providing he has carried out the responsibility of his chosen work, he is there. That is the only time that there can be a, what you would classify as a time lapse, because whilst we are within the astral sphere we have come with the sole purpose of carrying out our work and therefore that superimposes any other need or desire which comes from above. But they know it. The thought goes out, when our work has finished we come to a pause so to speak, then we can go forward.
