Accuracy of a Connection with a Medium

By Maurice Barbanell 2013

I tell you last time we met, it gave young Roy a little bit of a shock shall we say. We have to do that you see. When our medium is in a disturbed state of mind and he was in a disturbed state, then what we have to do is change their thinking. Take it into a different direction and we do that by a little bit of skulduggery shall we say. We let them think that somebody is coming through and then somebody actually comes through who is totally left-field! A little bit like when Gerald arrived for you. Roy fully expected a German Hun and instead he got an incredibly kind English gentleman.

I know. That was such a shock.

It was a shock. Believe me nobody was more shocked than Roy

That's going into preconceived.

Exactly, and that is when the truth or the genuiness, we should say, of the vessel that we are utilising comes through, because if it was a sham then it would obviously go through in the manner that the channel, and I'm using that word because I'm generalising rather than particularising, if the channel is expecting a certain manner of discourse and it comes totally different, it means that the discourse has to be accurate doesn't it?

Yes indeed.

And I don't know if you've ever thought of it in that way before, but that is why sometimes we do that by a little bit of skulduggery.

Well it makes us realise the great privilege that we are being given. I don't know if you've ever looked at it that way. When we are on the Earth Plane we consider that our contact with our friends is a great privilege in itself, do we not? And yet from our point of view having the ability to communicate is an enormous privilege because the times that we can do it and the individuals who we can utilise, relatively speaking when you look at the population of the Earth Plane, is miniscule.
