The symbol of the Nazarene on the Cross

By 2012 Maurice Barbanell

The Nazarene had total acceptance of what was going to come and trust in his guide and what did they do to him? They crucified him. So that is a pre-essence of accepting. I do not think that any of us would really volunteer to go to the Earth Plane knowing that you will get nailed to a cross. I think that you would need your head reading wouldn't you, but he did, he did it voluntarily and yet they considered him the wise one. How wise was it for him to come down to the Earth Plane just so they could stick him on a cross.

But the aftermath was worth it.

It was indeed, yes. I am merely jesting as you well know.

I know that is what we look at, the end result.

It's most strange that so often the peoples of the Earth Plane use the vision of the Nazarene on the cross as a reverent holy object and how wrong this is. How can you look upon somebody suffering on an object of torture and consider it a holy, or anything approaching holy.

Maybe nobody told them.

No it is merely the misinterpretation of the teachings. It was never intended that the cross be the symbol. It was intended originally that the fish be the symbol, because that's what the Nazarene said didn't he? "I will make you fishermen of men." What does that really mean? I'll make you fishermen of men.

To catch people.

To bring in the people into the net. To gather them together because that's what you do with fishermen. You throw your net out and you gather the fish in. The only difference is once you've gathered the fish in, you eat them. We don't do that with human beings.
