The Summerland formed by Thought and the Big Bang Theory

By Maurice Barbanell 2012

We all get a bit sloppy occasionally don't we? We get in our own little rut. Don't think just because we're not of the Earth Plane that we don't get in our little rut over here. It's just the same you know. Well it's not quite the same. We haven't got the physical body and all the other problems, but we still have problems. After all we come down to look after you and is that not a problem enough. (Just a little bit of Maurice's humour)

When you come to the Summerland, the astral sphere shall we call it, it's a land or a place which is governed by thought. Now think about that for a second. As it's governed by thought you can conjure up any situation and therefore if you wanted to see King Arthur and his Knights and the Roundtable it can be instilled into your thinking, into your mind, so you perceive that you have met King Arthur and sat at the Roundtable. It's total bunkum because King Arthur and the Roundtable it didn't actually exist.

What about Merlin?

You can have a Merlin if you want. Complete with a hat. You know with little crosses on it. He has little z's I believe. Well it depends upon how you perceive him doesn't it, but what would be the point?

Exactly, it's only make believe.

Yes. It is different when you go to the Halls of Learning and you want to look back into history. Now when you want to look back into history it's a record of exactly what has happened, your Aramaic record as some people call it. What is it? It's the essence of what has happened which has been recorded in thought form so when you go to the Halls of Learning and you wish to access this you actually physically do access it because it is an event that has occurred and you can actually put yourself into that event. Bit like a Peeping Tom, and the event will actually unfold before you. It'd be like watching a stage play really wouldn't it, except you're on the side. It's what we would call with your modern recording devices an instant replay, because that's all it is. The memories, or the situations which have occurred are being recorded on a memory tape shall we say, a hard drive, a very big hard drive and within that hard drive is all the events which have occurred, right from the time of the big bang.

That might have surprised you. There was a big bang you know. You don't actually understand how large the disruption was which created the Galaxy which you now occupy. People consider that it only occurred for your universe, the big bang theory. It did occur, but it was of immense proportion, far larger than your scientists could ever perceive.

You can't actually access that far back, not until you achieve the level of purity at the Seventh Plane, but when you achieve that level then you can understand the full extent, but for the utilisation of the works all the records which are contained within the Halls of Learning, they go back right to the initial occupation shall we say of the Earth Plane. Life existed before the Earth Plane was created.

Now I'm going to give you something which you probably haven't even thought about. It is a normal perception that our advancement, our return back to the fold so to speak, commenced when history recorded the early cavemen. That's where your perception or where the perception of the Earth Plane takes it. Well you're wrong. It actually occurred before then, a long time before. There have been other spheres which have been utilised to bring us forward, to bring us back to where we are. The Earth Plane was merely a tool, a part of the whole book shall we say. It's only one chapter. There are other chapters which are occurring elsewhere within the Universal. But I'll give you another surprise. The current occupation of the Earth Plane is not the first one. It has been used before. It was pre the ice age, pre-dinosaur. The Earth Plane was utilised but it was found to be unworkable, shall we say and therefore changes had to happen and then the Earth Plane went through a transition period and then we have our current occupation.

But it is something that in the essence of where we are going is only of academic importance and how much of the teachings that people are looking for are really only of academic importance? Probably 90% wouldn't you say? And yet that 90% occupies so much of their time and thinking and what really should occupy the majority of your thinking only occupies 10% and I'm being generous with that 10%. But we're all guilty of it. We all look at what's tangible, what has happened before, and then we try and predict what is going to happen in the future and then we look at our lives and we get distressed because we can always see that we could do so much more can't we? And then what do we do? We put on a hair shirt and flog ourselves and what purpose is that? Has that achieved anything?

Futility.

It is, but we're all guilty of it aren't we? We suddenly look back and we see the things that we haven't done and we feel let down. We feel as if we've let ourselves down do we not and what has the great man said? Don't look back on what has gone before with the exception of looking back for a lesson. Don't dwell on the negative. Don't allow yourself to be brought back because of things that happened in the past. You can't change them. You can move forward. You can look back and say I was a bloody fool there. I'm not going to do that again if the situation arises. That is being proactive. You're looking at a situation seeing where the faults were and therefore when the situation comes again and it will come again, you can say well alright I've been through this situation and this is where I fell down, so I'm not going to allow myself to fall down again in that area and if you do that and you actually achieve it, then you've moved forward. You've taken a great step. You've learnt by the mistakes of the past. Not dwelling on them. You're not repeating the mistakes. You're not revisiting them. You're moving forward. Now if you've done that, then you've achieved much.

I do feel a little bit slighted because you have this lady called Estelle and she keeps coming in and stealing the show. (Estelle Roberts had only recently joined our group, from spirit side.) She's fuller than life though isn't she? Yes, she delivers her message with a certain amount of aplomb, a certain amount of authority. She sought of sneaks it in, but you are quite right, or the medium is quite right, her knowledge bank is immense and it's obvious from the depth of her teaching that she teaches with authority, doesn't she? Quiet authority and that's a unique gift you know because so many people who have authority, and she has every right to assert authority because she has earned the right, but she never would accept it and that's the essence of a true great person, a true great being. I say person because that's more what you can perceive rather than a being. We don't call people, people you know, they're beings.
